

Four unsettling tales to read in the dark. For fans of Tales from the Crypt and Tales from the Darkside: Obituary - She was known by her colleagues as “Lady Death.” Of all the monikers Gretchen Huggins had acquired over the years “Weirdo, Mouth-breather, Lesbian Succubitch from Hell” that one was the most accurate description. When one of Gretchen's coworkers makes a play for a job at The Enquirer she believes is rightfully hers, she discovers just how accurate her nickname is. Recalling Past Lives - Carl Willis visits his ailing grandfather in the hospital and hears a disturbing confession that may or may not be the delusions of a dementia-addled brain. Old Flame - After twenty years of longing, Randall gets to spend the night with his childhood crush. But a lot has changed since they were in high school and the dream of his youth may be a real nightmare. Lost and Found - Twelve-year-old Josephine Harvey has a favorite teacher named Mr. Jones. Mr. Jones has a predilection for pain and small children. What happens when he offers her a ride home from school one day is a chilling study in abuse, imprisonment, and terror.
