

Presently her husband entered the room, and without noticing her, went to a table and began to search among some papers which covered it. Armand, she called to him, in a voice which must have stabbed him, if he was human. But he did not notice. Armand, she said again. Then she rose and tottered towards him. Armand, she panted once more, clutching his arm, look at our child. What does it mean? tell me. He coldly but gently loosened her fingers from about his arm and thrust the hand away from him. Tell me what it means! she cried despairingly. It means, he answered lightly, that the child is not white; it means that you are not white. A quick conception of all that this accusation meant for her nerved her with unwonted courage to deny it. It is a lie; it is not true, I am white! Look at my hair, it is brown; and my eyes are gray, Armand, you know they are gray. And my skin is fair, seizing his wrist. Look at my hand; whiter than yours, Armand, she laughed hysterically. As white as La Blanchés, he returned cruelly; and went away leaving her alone with their child.
