

A nova novela do autor de Brooklyn Follies encaixa a perfeccion no que a critica denomina autoficcion: o novelista escribe sobre si mesmo e convertese en personaxe, a súa vida queda apreixada no papel e é lida como unha narracion. Auster comeza o libro con 64 anos, coa vivencia do que el chama o inverno da vida. A partir de aí, o xogo da memoria vai ir tecendo unha narracion en segunda persoa no que os pormenores da vida acaban por adquirir unha significacion que, aparentemente, non tinan. O divorcio da súa nai e a súa morte, a mocidade e as manifestacions universitarias contra a guerra do Vietnam, o case mortal accidente de coche da súa segunda muller, a escritora Siri Hustvedt, e do seu fillo, a relacion cos diferentes lugares nos que viviu, a súa estadia en París... a rememoracion do día a día debuxa sutilmente unha historia chea de suxestións e incitacións a reflexion sobre a ferida do tempo e a escritura. Diario de inverno non é a primeira vez que Auster escribe sobre si mesmo, pois xa en 1982 publicou The Invention of Solitude, libro no que contaba os derradeiros anos da vida de seu pai.
