

Even Grues Get Full is the fourth collection of the hit geek comic strip User Friendly by J.D. Illiad Frazer. Written with fresh, dry humor and an amusing vividness that brings the cast of characters to life, the comic strip is loved and read by millions around the world, from professional technologists to eight-year old wunderkinds, from 83-year old grandmothers who miss their Commodore 64s to patient spouses of born programmers. The comic strip is packed with references to geek interests, from obscure movies to old computer games, yet non-geeks are able to enjoy the story lines and character quirks, from Erwins acerbic humor to Mirandas constant angst; from the Smiling Mans Machiavellian machinations to A.J.s dysfunctional naivete. At the center of this lies Dust Puppy, the strips gentle-hearted mascot and the character who has endeared himself to readers everywhere. In this book, join the antics of the characters once again as Stef contends with an enormous Tequila worm, Mike is tormented by Mr. Cola, and the techs move shop into an abandoned missile silo! Also included in this collection are the 9/11 tribute cartoons that were widely praised for their clear and simple pathos. Called Dilbert for Geeks by Wired magazine and considered to be one of the few consistently intelligent and socially aware cartoons on the Net, User Friendly remains one of the most popular destinations for geeks and non-geeks alike. This book is a sure hit with anyone who works with computers or for anyone who lives with someone who works with computers!
