

Four Windows is a serial anthology for readers who enjoy their fiction in fun-sized portions. Each issue contains a part of four different novels – each about Seattle – which will be published in full at the end of the series. Look out for Issue 3 on February 28th! Trace, by Ian Smith Joanne Shaughnessy needs a job, and bad – which explains why in the course of 24 hours she’s agreed to be a guinea pig for some New Age doctor’s experiments on the chi of amputees and to buy antiques (and just antiques, she hopes) for an eccentric Chinese woman who seems to think Joanne has supernatural powers. In Part 2, Joanne continues to grapple with her newfound powers, while at the same time navigating the stormy waters of a new relationship. NeuTraffic, by Andrew Gaines John Graham, Thought Commuter License 178, has a simple mission: deliver a message. In a near-future, post-revolution Seattle, he and the other underground messengers are the only tenuous threads that keep the fledgling New Cascadian Order from falling back into chaos. But when a warning strike from a neighboring Nation-State took out Seattle’s I-5 bridge, John Graham found himself stranded on the wrong side of the Ship Canal with an extremely important message to deliver. In Part 2, John gets help from an unexpected source, and is drawn deeper into the underbelly of post-rev Seattle. School of Sight, by Alisha A. Knaff There is a world that not everyone can see: a world of fairies and witches and shapeshifters and vampires that exists right alongside the boring, everyday life most people get to live in. When a young sibyl gets their first glimpse of that world, they find themselves questioning both their sanity and the very nature of reality as they have always known it. After all, isn’t it crazier to believe in fairies than to simply be crazy? After a series of mysterious disappearances started plaguing the supernatural community, the sibyl stayed back, unsure how to get involved. Until, that is, a particularly strong vampire began to take an interest in the young sibyl, planting seeds of uncertainty that have been tough to uproot. Shifting Borders, by Jessie Kwak When a resurrection goes awry in a cold Seattle cemetery, mother-of-three Patricia Ramos-Waites finds herself possessed by the ghost of her sister’s dead lover. God forbid that her only problem be sharing her body with Dead Marco, however. Yesterday Patricia’s only worries were her teenage son’s new deadbeat friends, and how she was going to put her kids through college; today she’s become the target of a Central American drug-smuggling gang who desperately want to get their hands on the ghost she’s hosting. But as Marco begins showing unsettling signs of strength, Valeria is becoming even more distant – and in Part 2, Patricia is less and less sure she can trust her sister to tell her the truth.
