

Kahlil Gibran was a masterful writer whose work has inspired generations to find new and enriching perspectives on life, love and companionship. Best-selling author of The Prophet, which sold more copies in the twentieth century than any other book except the Bible, Gibran's enduring words have challenged generations of men and women to see love in a new light. There should be spaces in togetherness, he says, so that we do not cast shadows and inhibit each others growth; love one another, he says, but make not a bond of love. In this compendium, Gibran's universal vision of hope and unity is made manifest in human relationships. Poetic and practical, his words on love are profoundly personal and emotionally evocative. They will alter your perception of yourself, your loved ones, and the world you inhabit, transforming the mundane into the miraculous.
