

2000 years after the Rapture, the world still sucks. After spending 2000 years on this earth, blinded and forsaken by God, Vikardt wants to die. But only one thing can kill him: the Stone of Rapture. So when an archeological team extracts the talisman from the ocean floor, sweet death finally comes within his reach. But a rogue beats him to it. Now the talisman responsible for the infamous Rapture is embedded in Doban's chest. In a desperate gamble, Vikardt manipulates the king into initiating a manhunt for the rogue. Doban must seek protection from the unlikeliest of allies: one, an abused monster with an appetite for human flesh; the other, a woman he once left to die in a tomb. Can they let go of the past long enough to keep Doban alive? Or will Vikardt recover the stone and bring about a second Rapture?
