

The Bream of Nonsenseness is another collection of strange short stories written by John Finti. It contains the following nonsense: 1) Eversort Haverleen - One man. One strange name. One pigeon narrator. 2) A Squirrel Confused - A squirrel is confronted with a twenty-foot bagpipe-playing haddock. 3) Like Any Other - Clouds can only legally move about on a Thursday, which also happens to be the day that all trousers float up into the sky. 4) The Pregnant Pause - The exploited factory workers on an assembly line make the popular product Love for consumers everywhere. 5) The Elephant - A professor finds that his new chair has become a very large elephant. 6) The Glass - Margarine Murgatroyd sits in a bar while the people around her turn into antelopes. Total word count = 6,200 words (approximately) Contains anatomy and weirdness. What more could you want?! Come, my friends, and marvel at The Bream of Nonsenseness!

The Intuitions of Victorian Nonsense Literature Jean-Jacques Lecercle Notto forget the abysmal thought that if Alice is a creature of the King's dream, he.

Nonsense! Cora Steffani had never, as far as could be discovered, even met this Edward Jones. Never been in San Diego. Or Seattle. Only briefly in Chicago. The great thing about a twenty-year scenario is that you can dream big without scaring anyone. The older people in your church will not feel threatened because .

And the ones who say their dream was to marry are full of shit, or too afraid to dream and every day they carry this regret with them to their depressing nine to five. I grudgingly bid farewell to my dream of a quiet, peaceful start to the day and faced my strangely elated parents. I plopped myself in an empty chair beside them.
