

David Miller and Terry Gronbeck-Jones have assembled a collection of true stories about their experiences with big-box stores, airlines, restaurants, factories and more. With many years of business development experience, David and Terry have found an entertaining and insightful way to illustrate how some companies get it right, and some get it wrong. If you appreciate a good story, these nine stories are powerful illustrations of the importance of relationships in business, and in life.

The North Wind and the Sun had a quarrel about which of them was the stronger. While they were disputing with much heat and bluster, a Traveler passed along.

The North Wind and the Sun had a quarrel about which of them was the stronger. While they were disputing with much heat and bluster. A dispute arose between the North Wind and the Sun, each claiming that he was stronger than the other. At last they agreed to try their powers upon a traveller. Once upon a time, the North Wind met the Sun. The North Wind boasted of his great strength. The Sun said that there was more power in gentleness. "Let's have. Once the North Wind and the Sun were arguing about who was the stronger. They saw a man walking below. "I am the strongest," said the North Wind fiercely. THE WIND and the Sun were disputing which was the stronger. Suddenly they saw a traveller coming down the road, and the Sun said: "I see a way to decide. The North Wind and the Sun were disputing which was the stronger, when a traveler came along wrapped in a warm cloak. They agreed that the one who first .
