

JP Roelofse takes the reader on a thought provoking - yet ironically true - journey through some of the major brokennesses we see in our modern day churches in the world. It seems that the church has forsaken God to the extent that God has left the church buildings, and only institutionalized religious and economical practices are left in our church buildings. This book covers the following chapters and addresses different topics in each chapter in a concise, yet complete, manner:- The Church is broken- Money Money Money- Praise and Worship- Church and the Creative Imagination- The Shielding Church The author has been deeply involved in the church and Praise and Worship bands for more than a decade, is not trying to give answers to all the issues and wrongs of the church, but rather to leave the reader with food for thought and to raise some provoking questions regarding the religious practices found in all churches of all denominations all over the world. This book is both controversial and relevant and addresses real issues in the church as personally experienced and witnessed by the author.
