

Anna Pavlovas revolutionary debut in 1910 at the Metropolitan Opera House captivated the nation and introduced Americans to the charms of modern ballet. Willa Cather was among the first intellectuals to recognize that dance had suddenly been elevated into a new art form, and she quickly trained herself to become one of the leading balletomanes of her era. Willa Cather and the Dance traces the writers dance education, starting with the ten-page explication she wrote in 1913 for McClures magazine called Training for the Ballet. Cathers interest was sustained through her entire canon as she utilized characters, scenes, and images from almost all of the important dance productions that played in New York.
