

Willimena finds trouble again when she sells more cookies than any other Girl Scout in her troop. Tina, Willies older sister, taught Willie to smile and act like shes in a television commercial when she knocks on a door to sell cookies. Tinas advice worked and Willie sold almost $100.00 worth of cookies. When she discovers two neighbor children who dont have money for food, Willie borrows cookie money to buy food for them at the school cafeteria. The cookie money is due and now Willie must figure out how to replace what she borrowed. Willie learns that doing something wrong, even if it is for a good cause, is to be avoided.
